

Thinking about becoming a teacher?

Do you want to guide children in their formative years, building the foundations for their future success? Have you ever thought of working to help shape the educational future of the country? Maybe live and work overseas? Studying education at the University of Wollongong gives you the opportunity to do all this and more.

There are two ways to qualify as a primary or secondary teacher:

>> A four year specialist education undergraduate degree, such as a Bachelor of Primary Education

>> Any other undergraduate degree such as a Bachelor of Arts (with subjects suitable for teaching) plus a postgraduate course, such as a one year Graduate Diploma of Education. The Graduate Diploma in Education is a professional one-year postgraduate teacher education program.

Secondary school teachers teach one or more subjects to students in Year 7 to Year 12. These subjects are broadly grouped into the following eight key learning areas:

>> English >> Mathematics >> Science >> Human Society and its Environment >> Languages other than English >> Technological and Applied Studies >> Creative Arts >> Personal Development, Health and Physical Education.

Primary school teachers are trained to teach across six key learning areas:

>> English >> Mathematics >> Human Society and its Environment >> Science and Technology >> Creative and Practical Arts >> Personal Development, Health and Physical Education.

With specialist training you can work in areas such as special education, English as a second language, vocational education, teacher librarianship, careers education and school counselling.

At UOW Southern Highlands you can complete a three year undergraduate Bachelor of Arts or Commerce degree which satisfies the requirements for enrolment in the University of Wollongong's Graduate Diploma in Education in either Primary or Secondary teaching. This can be studied at the Wollongong, Shoalhaven, Batemans Bay or Bega Campuses. If you have a degree from another institution, you may be eligible to complete the Graduate Diploma in Education if your degree meets the entry requirements.

Full time or part time study?

The course is one year full-time or two years part-time, over an extended academic year from mid-January to mid-November.

Primary Teaching

The program involves lectures, seminars, tutorials, individual assignments, group exercises and blocks of supervised practice teaching in schools. Teaching practice and experience are provided in collaboration with local schools. The program provides a teaching qualification that is recognised by the NSW Department of Education and Training (DET) the Catholic Education Office, independent primary schools and employing authorities in other states. It is also accepted internationally.

Secondary Teaching

Secondary school teachers teach one or more subjects to students in Year 7 to Year 12. At the secondary level, together with the study of core education subjects, the teaching subjects known as 'methods' will be available in a number of subject areas. The number of 'method' subjects offered to students is dependent on the number of applicants, and not all methods are available each year.

Overseas Professional Experience

Students in the program have the option of completing part of their professional experience overseas. The overseas experience parallels and earns the same credit towards the Graduate Diploma as the three-week local professional experience. The time overseas offers an illuminating professional experience that is both different from and yet relevant to teaching in Australia. In addition, through contacts with teachers and students, there is the opportunity for a much more meaningful interaction with a different culture than is available to most overseas visitors.

NOTE: A limited number of places are available for overseas Professional Experience. Click here to find out more.
